

Natural Product Biotechnology 2017

Sustainably exploiting biodiversity to make life better

25- 26 September 2017 – ABERDEEN, SCOTLAND

DISCOUNTED REGISTRATION FOR DELEGATES OF ICMAN-IUPHAR

The International Conference on Natural Product Biotechnology (NPB) is a significant conference for people with interests in biotechnology and high value natural products, and for 2017 we are running in conjunction with ICMAN-IUPHAR, offering delegates the opportunity to attend both meetings.

NPB's scope is around natural raw material resources, bioprocessing and sustainable/ green technologies to handle high-value materials to protect their activity while formulating products for the nutraceutical and pharma markets. We are very much a cross-sector conference, covering products from the marine environment, wild plants, crops and microbial sources, and deliberately encourage broad conversations and collaboration in the application of innovative technologies.

Our final programme will be made up of presentations from our open call combined with invited keynotes bringing technical insights from industry and research – please see our website at www.icnpb for information and updates about our confirmed speakers and the programme. The sessions will be accompanied by an exhibition providing opportunities for organisations to showcase their capabilities, a conference dinner and a reception with ICMAN-IUPHAR offering plenty of formal and informal opportunities to partner and link up with other delegates. It has been agreed that any posters accepted by the ICMAN-IUPHAR scientific steering group will automatically be acceptable for presentation at ICNPB by delegates attending both conferences - and vice versa (albeit the deadline for inclusion in the published ICMAN-IUPHAR proceedings has passed.)

We are keen to engage with those individuals who are already travelling to Aberdeen for ICMAN-IUPHAR, and delighted to be able to offer a 10% discount on registration, as well as exhibition space and other sponsorship opportunities.

Our booking page can be found by following this link, please use the booking code ENCINVITED to secure the discount online – if you would prefer to pay by invoice, or for queries about exhibition space or sponsorship please contact us at contact@icnpb.org or speak to Jim Brown, the conference director directly on +44 (0) 7974 804037.

We look forward to welcoming you to Aberdeen in September to take part in this exciting week of activity in the sector.

www.icnpb.org

 @icnpb